

Susbscribers should be allowed to purchase channels individually, "a la carte." Most subscribers now use only a fraction of the each channel graoup the pay for. An additional benefit would accrue to the cable provider in that he would know the exact popularity ranking of all his offerings and could taylor his offering presumably for greater sales success.